Hotelschool The Hague is pleased that the Dutch authorities acknowledged the international identity of the school by rewarding Hotelschool The Hague with the Distinctive Feature 'Internationalisation' after an extensive auditing process that assesses the core components of an (international) school, like the international strategy, the recruitment and selection of international faculty, students and staff, the international orientation of the learning programme and the 'international usability' of the final attainment level, its facilities etc.

Regarding the geographical focus, Hotelschool The Hague targets potential students from European countries, but also from other countries all around the world. With the global top 5 ranking and with students from over 50 nationalities, Hotelschool The Hague constantly strives to intensify the internationalisation.

One of the strategic principles of Hotelschool The Hague is: 'Deliver the Promise: Best Students, Best Faculty'. Students and teaching staff constitute the foundation of Hotelschool The Hague. They form the basis of the quality of the education and the global reputation of the Hotelschool. The qualitative performance agreements: 40% international students (previous education abroad) and 22% international staff (employees from abroad), but also the introduction of specialisms (such as the minor Strategic Relationship Management) contribute to this.
